Sixth Co. C. A. C.

Captain R. V. Ladd and nine members of the Sixth Company of Coast Artillery Reserve left Monday for three days of target practice at Gastonia, where the local team will shoot against the other teams of North Carolina. The Hendersonville team has been practicing at the 500 yard range at Laurel park for two or three weeks and is in condition to make an excellent showing at the shooting now going on at Gastonia.

The local company is constantly growing and as a result of its splendid conditions it is receiving some flattering compliments from Adjutant General L. W. Young, who by reason of his long residence in Asheville is personally and pleasantly acquainted with the Hendersonville boys.

The company, which is composed of fifty members and has a $6,000 equipment furnished by the government, was mustered in on March 8, 1911, since which time it has been making splendid progress.

The officers are: Captain R. V. Ladd; First Lieutenant; T. V. Lyda, Second Lieutenant—Wiltshire Griffith; First Sergeant—W. A. Garren; Quartermaster Sergeant—E.

L. Drake; Sergeants—L. O. Ryon, J. P. Case, J. S. Jones and Claude English; Corporals—V. E. Grant, R. L. Rusher, Arthur Perry, Tom Loffin, W. H. Garren.

Captain Ladd is highly pleased with the work of the company and says that he would be glad to have twenty more members join at once.

The inducements offered the men in the way of money is not worthy of consideration as they get an allowance of only fifty cents a month. The real attractive feature of the work is that the company is given a fourteen day trip to Fort Caswell each year, during which time they get regular army pay, (according to rank) transportation and all expenses. The boys enjoyed their trip to the sea shore last year and are looking forward with great interest to the second trip to be made in August. Those who went to the target practice at Gastonia this week will also be furnished with transportation, subsistence and pay as if in active service.

Of interest to the military men is the announcement that Capt. Alex Grigg, the regular army officer assigned by the national department to North Carolina for the purpose of instructing the coast artillery troops, will be at the regular meeting in Hendersonville at the Armory Friday night of this week to render any assistance needed by the local team.

The Hendersonville reserves make an excellent showing in their regular drills on the street. They have a splendid equipment of uniforms, rifles, and all necessary paraphernalia for the execution of their work.

As a compliment of the good work done by the local team, Captain Ladd while in Asheville Friday was assured by Governor Craig and Adjutant General Young that in case the military company of Asheville had to be called out, the Hendersonville boys would be called upon next. They advised Captain Ladd to return to Hendersonville at once and get his men in preparation. This he did and at an early hour of the night he had thirty-five men in readiness to go to Asheville, when he received a telephone message to the effect that the strike had ended.

Following are those who accompanied Captain Ladd to Gastonia: W. A. Garren, L. O. Ryon, E. L. Drake, Arthur Perry, John Saltz, Charlie Cagle, Walter Cagle, R. L. Rusher, J. P. Case.
